

Blackmail letter from Reginald Thornton-Fiennes

Date: January 20, 2026

From: Reginald Thornton-Fiennes (reggie.thornton-fiennes@blackmail.com)

To: Sherlock Holmes (holmes@sleuth.com)

Subject: The Secrets You've Kept

Dear Sherlock,

I hope this letter finds you well. Or, at the very least, finds you in a state of mild desperation. I'm sure you're aware that our paths have crossed on numerous occasions over the years. Our conversations, though often laced with wit and sarcasm, have left me with an unshakeable feeling that there's more to you than meets the eye.

I've been doing some digging, Sherlock. Oh, how I wish I could say it was a mere coincidence that led me to this moment of truth. But no, my curiosity has proven too great. It appears that your remarkable faculties have not only served you well in your line of work but also as an amateur spy and private investigator.

I have reason to believe that you've been watching me, Sherlock. Yes, even I, Reginald Thornton-Fiennes, with all my secrets and scandals. You see, I'm not just a wealthy socialite with a penchant for fast cars and high-stakes poker; I'm also the nephew of Lord Harrington, a man with far more influence than you'll ever have in your humble abode at 221B Baker Street.

You have two weeks to come clean about what you know. Anything less will result in my releasing incriminating evidence that will ruin your reputation and leave you questioning everything you thought you knew about yourself.

The stakes, Sherlock:

- Your secret life as an amateur spy exposed to the world
- The theft of sensitive information from Lord Harrington's estate
- Unwavering blackmail

Don't say I didn't warn you. You have 14 days to respond.

Yours sincerely,

Reginald Thornton-Fiennes